FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MEN AND WOMEN TALKING LOVE AND SEX

a play by
John Paul Porter

Directed by Michole Biancosino

Davenport Theatre
354 West 45th Street
(between 8th/9th Avenue)

Produced by Porter's Playhouse

This all too real look at how men and women really think and feel is a wildly funny raucous free for all, but one that is ultimately heart wrenching.

For the first time ever an audience is asked to take a Selfie at the End of Act One and a Selfie at the end of Act Two. These pictures will reflect the famous masks of theater, laughter and sorrow. The audience is asked to share their Selfies. The pictures will also be gathered for a Gallery in the theater.

The Selfie Gallery

You  After Act One  	You  After Act Two
---	---

In the play a relationship is followed from its giddy beginning to its unhappy end, replete with a running commentary from a Peanut Gallery of friends. The play examines the expectation of the sexes, the sexual nitty-gritty, how everything goes wonderful until it all goes to smash, all done in an exuberant theatrical style.

Each month the best After Act One and After Act Two Selfies - The Masks of Theater - will receive $100 plus two free tickets to a performance of Men and Women Talking Love and Sex, or any future play produced by Porter's Playhouse.
